Agiloft has grown through a strong focus on engineering excellence and absolute dedication to world-class customer service. These values reflect the talent, experience, and commitment of its employees and partners

Founded in 1991, Agiloft worked on major development projects for Cisco, Compaq, 3Com, and others before launching SupportWizard in 1996. Although we designed SupportWizard as a customer support and helpdesk application, it was so flexible that customers began extending it to meet their needs in other areas.

We soon realized how much overlap there was between enterprise applications. They all needed workflow, email integration, business rules, graphical reports, API connectors, etc. Only the data model differed from program to program. The tables, fields and workflows were specific to each application.
